

Experienced freelancer with a love for simple, useful and beautiful technology.

Hampus Ahlgren

An accomplished freelance web developer, who's been dipping his toes in all areas of the web-creation process for over three years. With a strong sense of self motivation and a responsibility for the final product, I've got what it takes to grow an idea into a finished product*.

Experience

I have a great range of experiences, which has formed me into a very good all-rounder in the web development process. I've done low level PHP backend development as well as javascript/jquery front end development. I have also managed team members and have had a great deal of experience in client communication.
